A Vision for the Portland Green Loop

This year, Design Week Portland Headquarters will bring to life a design concept for the Green Loop, a new pedestrian/bike urban promenade linking the city's east and west sides. Reimagining the design process as a public celebration, Headquarters will host a weeklong exhibition that invites the community to come together to learn, discuss, and collectively envision the project's potential. Intended to define the identity and character of the project, the exhibition will provide opportunities to engage with the concept through creative programming, a streetscape prototype, and large-scale interactive map. Headquarters will also act as the festival's information hub and living room—creating a neighborhood gathering space for participants to meet and share their experiences. Bring your insights, curiosity, and imagination and join the conversation.
